On Thursday the party will proceed to St. Albert, where a reception and lunch will be given at the mission. Addresses will be presented by the mission and by the citizens. The party will return to Edmonton in the evening, and will leave for the south on Friday morning.

FREE HOMESTEADS (?)

A case of considerable hardship in the matter of locating a homestead has been brought to the attention of the BULLETIN. D. Gerard who came from Aurora, Kansas, in October last accompanied by his wife and seven children, tells the following story: As it was late in the fall he procured a house in the St. Albert settlement for the winter, and as soon as his family was settled he set out to look for land. On the 17th of December he selected the northeast quarter of section 36, township 48, range 25, west of 4th meridian, being assisted in finding the corner stakes by a settler in the vicinity named Gottlieb Falkenberg. He started for the land office at Wetaskiwin the same evening, and put up at a house about four miles north of Wetaskiwin. On the morning of the 18th as he was hitching up to go on to Wetaskiwin he saw Falkenberg and another man walking towards Wetaskiwin and offered the pair a ride which they accepted. On arriving at Wetaskiwin he went to the land office, Falkenberg going also. Gerard made application for the land above mentioned and was informed by the agent that he would probably have trouble getting it as Falkenberg had already spoken for the land before coming into the office, as he wished to enter it for his son who was still in Washington state. The agent did not grant entry to either party but referred the matter to the commissioner in Winnipeg, with the result that Gerard received the following letter:

"Department of Interior
Dominion lands office,
Wetaskiwin, Jan. 21st, '95.

Sir:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 14th inst., in reference to the northeast quarter of section 36, township 48, range 25, west of 4th meridian, and to say in reply that the matter was submitted to the commissioner of Dominion lands for decision, and a reply was received on the 18th ult, that as the evidence submitted by you and Gottlieb Falkenberg in regard to your respective claims to this land are of nearly equal weight, entry should be granted to either of you who will offer the highest cash bonus for the privilege. You would have been sooner advised of this decision but I did not know your post office address. You shall have 20 days within which to decide what you will do. Otherwise the land will be open to the first applicant.

Signed
THOS. B. FERGUSON,
Agent Dominion Lands.

To D. GILKARD,
St. Albert.

Mr. Gerard feels it to be a hardship when he was the first to apply for the land at the proper time and the proper place and when he was in the country and had thereby shown his intention to become an actual settler that he should be put on the same footing as the man who was not in the country at all and who therefore might never be an actual settler. Before leaving Kansas he had been assured that land was free in this country and now after spending time and money in selecting a piece of land he is met by a proposition that he shall purchase the land not at a fixed price but in competition with another man. If Mr. Gerard's account of the affair as above given is correct there can be no doubt that he is fairly and fully entitled to a homestead entry for the land. And indeed the letter of the agent does not deny that he is. The expression used is "nearly equal." But even if there were a question as to the respective rights of the two applicants some other way of settling the dispute might easily be found than by departing so far from the advertised policy of the department to give free homesteads to all who apply for them.

STURGEON.

The weather for the past few weeks has been like spring. A letter from Ontario dated Feb. 12th says: "We have had a great storm here. It started on Friday night about 11 o'clock and lasted until some time on Monday evening. We had to dig our way out through the snow banks. The roads are through fields all over."

Miss McNeil has been re-engaged as teacher of Sturgeon school district. This school will be conducted this season as a summer school as there are not enough pupils for a yearly school.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, FEBRUARY 25th, 1906.

CANADA WESTERN RAILWAY.

The project of a railway line through Northern British Columbia and the Saskatchewan valley is taking definite shape. An act incorporating the Canada Western Central railway was passed by the legislature of British Columbia, under which a company was empowered to construct a railway from Victoria on Vancouver Island to the boundary of the province in Yellowhead pass. The idea of course was to connect there with a road built from Winnipeg westward through the Saskatchewan valley, under a Dominion charter—either the Northwest Central or Manitoba North Western. During the present session of the British Columbia legislature an amendment to the charter granting one year's extension of time for commencement was carried by a vote of 13 to 10. The grounds urged for the extension were the state of the money market. The act was a government measure and in support of it the premier said: The object of the bill was to facilitate construction and give fair and reasonable time for the construction of the road. As the Canadian Pacific railway had opened up the southern portion of the province the Canada Western would perform a like service for the remainder comprising three fourths of its whole territory. In British Columbia it would give facilities for getting into a vast country that otherwise would be uninhabited and undeveloped for generations to come. There was no reason why the development of the province should be confined to one part. They were inviting people to come there to settle and must provide places for them. This railway would open up the way for millions to find homes, and he considered it the policy of true statesmanship to open up by every means all parts of the land, and to encourage capital to come here for investment. The arguments of the leader of the opposition were that assistance to this railway project would injure the credit of the province in London; that as its practical terminus would be where it first touched the Pacific and not Victoria, it would injure Victoria, and that its construction and the consequent development of the northern part of the province would necessarily injure the already developed southern portion. The proposition evidently has the support of the city of Victoria, the most wealthy and most solid city on the northern coast. The senior member for Victoria, R. F. Rietel, who is a very wealthy man, seems to be the chief promoter. In the course of a long speech in support of the bill he said:

I feel that I must touch, however slightly, upon the features of this proposition bearing upon the development of the neighboring territory of the Northwest, and the possibilities which would be rendered practicable for that country if a connecting road with the line of Canada Western Railway Co. were undertaken. The Yellowhead pass, through which it is proposed to take the Canada Western, is pronounced to be the most advantageous yet discovered in the Rocky Mountains for a railroad, and the country to the eastward through which the connecting road would pass is reported to be the most productive and desirable portion of the Northwest. It would appear that with such a connection the products of that young but rapidly growing country might be conveyed to European markets by way of the Pacific, instead of as now by the Atlantic ocean, the advantage of distance in rail carriage being very large. Although the carriage by sea would of course be increased, yet the carriage by sea being so much cheaper, the cost would still show a material saving. Take for instance the rate of freight from points west of Winnipeg as the basis, and the distance by rail to the exports on the Atlantic at from 1,500 to 2,000 miles, and considering too that most of the grain from that section has to remain in elevators during the winter at expense to the holders, waiting the opening of navigation in the spring, and taking the rate of freight west per mile at the same as that east, for a distance of from 1,000 to 1,250 miles from this coast, the railway carriage would be largely reduced. The difference in ocean freights from Quebec or Montreal may be taken at 15 shillings, as compared with 25 shillings from Pacific Coast ports, or only a difference of 10 shillings per ton, so that the probable difference in favor of the Pacific Coast would be from $2 to $4 per ton, and as an additional advantage the ports on the Pacific are open all the year round, rendering the necessity and expense of holding until navigation opened in the spring of each year unnecessary. There is also the possibility, if not the probability as far as yet known, of the Hudson's Bay railway being built, and the time between the coast of British Columbia and England being thereby largely reduced. The distance now is 2,850 miles by rail and 2,650 by water, from Victoria to Liverpool by way of Quebec, while by the Hudson's Bay route the distances are only about 1,800 miles by rail and 3,000 miles by water, a saving of 1,000 miles rail travel, while the sea travel is only increased by 300 odd miles. The question as to the navigation of the Hudson's Bay by steamer appears to be deserving of investigation in order to determine its practicability, as by many it is believed to be open nearly as long as the St. Lawrence at Montreal.

In my judgment the time has arrived when the settlement of this province should be undertaken upon a more comprehensive scale than has ever yet been attempted, and I know of no better way in which this can be done than by the building of a road through the portion of British Columbia to be traversed by the proposed line of the Canada Western railway taking in as it does the northern end of Vancouver Island, which is rich in timber and coal, and well suited for agriculture; then crossing to the mainland and passing through the very heart of the mainland, rich also in agricultural resources and minerals of various kinds; and affording the opportunity of reaching by future connecting lines the extensive and rich agricultural territory known as Peace river, the gold region at the head of the Skeena river and Omineca districts and beyond; then passing through the already famous portion of British Columbia, Cariboo—where fortunes were made in a season, and where gold to the value of $65,000,000 has already been extracted, and in which section it is also claimed that for alluvial diggings and for quartz mines not more than a small beginning has been made. With these great inducements it seems reasonable to conclude that whenever this railway may be built it will before its construction shall have reached Cariboo, be the means of doubling at least the present population of the province. The Canadian Pacific Railway may have accomplished its purposes in furnishing this Dominion with a transcontinental road through Canadian territory, but it entirely fails as a development road, so far as British Columbia is concerned. Passing through as it does the southern part of the province, and through a very mountainous and rugged portion of it too, the territory to the south of it which is tributary is limited in extent, though rich in minerals and agriculture, while at least ninety per cent. of the territory within the province lies to the north of that line, and owing to the conformation of the country cannot, within economic principles, be reached by it. It is for the purpose of reaching this northern section of the province that the line of the Canada Western has been found necessary, and until it has been constructed as a trunk line (by whom is a matter of little consequence) I feel sure that the province cannot be made what nature intended it should be—the richest and most prosperous province of this Dominion—or take her proper position as a province in the Dominion; or as the gateway of the Dominion to the Empire; or as the representative of the Empire and the Dominion upon the Pacific Coast. (Applause.)

Although this project may at first appear a wild cat scheme, especially to those of us in the Northwest who have learned to look upon the Territories as a C. P. R. preserve, and a competing transcontinental line as an impossibility, the more closely it is examined the more feasible and desirable and necessary it appears. Of course it is a foregone conclusion that such a road can never be built without national aid, and that under no circumstances will such liberal aid as has been granted the C. P. R. be given to any other road. But on the other hand the vast aid granted the C. P. R. went in no small proportion to make the promoters of the scheme millionaires rather than in the necessities of the road. The actual necessities of the projected enterprise are not nearly as great as were those of the C. P. R. The route through British Columbia is not nearly so long, so expensive to construct or so costly and difficult to operate. As connection would be made at Winnipeg with one or more United States railways—competing with the C. P. R.—the costly construction from Montreal to Winnipeg, by far the greatest part of the total cost of the C. P. R., would be avoided. Besides, the province of British Columbia would bear a very large share of the cost of the most costly portion of the line through that province. There can be no question but there is room and plenty of it for a line competing with the C. P. R. along the Saskatchewan river and through northern British Columbia, through a region offering better facilities for construction and far greater assurances of a paying local traffic than the main line of the C. P. R. Very likely nothing practical can be done until the present financial stringency shall abate. But when that occurs as it certainly will occur shortly there is no reason why the enterprise may not be proceeded with and made a success, provided always that the people and their representatives are alive to the necessities of the case. This road is the means whereby railway monopoly throughout the Northwest can be brought to an end, provided the people are alive to their own interests and do not allow the project to be throttled by the C. P. R., or, as they have done with that road, make it a master instead of a servant.

PORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, is expected here on Wednesday next, 27th inst., and the citizens and settlers have arranged an informal reception for 2 o'clock. The day that can be done, owing to the short stay His Honor is supposed to be able to make. Everybody seems pleased to think they will have an opportunity of seeing him, and in all probability of hearing such a well known and popular man, as His Honor.

A large lumber yard and planing mill, the enterprise of Mr. Haddon of the Sturgeon river settlement, is now being established here. He purposes making flooring, siding, window sash and doors, and has secured commodious premises.

Messrs. Irish & Newton are also starting another important industry here in the shape of a tannery, and purpose manufacturing mitts, gloves and moccasins in addition to tanning.

The Presbyterians have let the contract for their new church. It is also understood the English church people will do the same before long.

Plans are under way for five dwelling houses and one store, so that all our expatriates will shortly have their hands full.

A hockey match has been arranged for Saturday afternoon, 23rd inst., between the police team and a new civilian team of this place.

Letters of enquiry from prospective settlers, keep pouring in by every mail, giving evidence of the interest the Edmonton district is creating in the outside world. There is room for thousands of good, hard working settlers, but all should have some cash to make a start with, as cash is not much more plentiful here in the beginning of a settler's career than in any other new country.

CALGARY FREIGHT RATES.

The statement of the Calgary board of trade before the freight rates commission, which appeared in the Calgary Herald, contain the following paragraphs in its summary:

Without boasting, we have a country equal to any in Canada. We can make better and cheaper goods than any. Our grain is rich, so that our cattle can pass from the prairie to the butcher. We can grow oats, barley and wheat equal to any in North America. Our sheep, our wool and our mutton are unequalled. But all these avail us nothing. Of what use is our fat cattle if we have to pay $15 a head to get them to market? Our fine grain is more than counterbalanced by heavy freight. Of what use is butter and cheese if our markets are taken from us? Of what use is it to raise sheep if we are taxed to haul wool from Australia? What is the use of trying to raise oats when we are charged a third of the value for hauling it to market? Everything that we grow is paid for at the highest rate while that which we have to send out is taxed a third. Our markets are captured and given over to our rivals. No country, however, rich in natural resources can stand long such treatment. It would require a gold mine at each man's door to stand it long.

And in the Providence made a country on the shores of the Pacific, full of mountains, but rich in timber and mineral wealth to the east he made a vast plain interspersed with lake and stream and clothed with bright verdure, our beautiful prairie. He intended it to be the home of a happy to numerous people. He intended it to be the base of supply for an industrial army of hundreds of thousands who will sit occupy and develop the riches of the interior. But man came along and said I will send what God has decreed, I will arrange things so as to make it impossible for you to do what was manifestly intended that you should do. I will change the base of supply from the west to the east, and I will show my might by making your country a waste and a desolation.

The people of Canada built and paid for the Canadian Pacific Railway, and intended it to be part of a national highway, from ocean to ocean. They intended it to be the means of opening up a great but unbroken country.

The country has more than surpassed the dreams of the most sanguine, but the railway has failed to do its duty; a national highway paid for by the people, yet a foreigner from Maine wishing to locate in Washington can travel over it cheaper than a Canadian wishing to settle in Alberta; but the Canadian is taxed yearly to pay interest on capital, while we in Alberta are taxed to pay interest on capital, doubly taxed to pay interest on bonds and shares, and all so that a foreigner can travel from one part of his own country to another cheaply.

LONDON FUR SALES.

Messrs. McMillan & Co., fur dealers of Minneapolis, give the following report of the London fur sales, which commenced Jan. 22nd, and closed Jan. 23th.

Compared with March sale.	Compared with October sales.
Beaver, black, 5% lower.	10% lower.
" brown, 20% higher.	10% "
" grey, 30% "	20% "
Badger, 10% "	25% higher.
Fox, Arctic, 10% "	5% higher.
Fox, grey, same.	15% "
Fox, red, same.	5% "
Fox, white, 180% higher.	125% "
Lynx, 15% lower.	5% "
Marten, 40% higher.	15% "
Mink, 10% "	30% "
Mohair, 15% lower.	Same.
Skunk, 10% "	25% "
Wolf, northern, 5% "	25% "
Beaver, 10% "	Jan'y. Same.

About the only articles that actually advanced are marten and mink. We are positively advised that one article, viz. Beaver, which we report declined 10 per cent., declined more than this, and they caution us to be careful in buying it because should it go out of fashion the decline would be heavy and amount to a great deal of money. Beaver is out of fashion and consequently selling at lower prices with little demand. We wish to increase our collection of such articles as Fisher, silver, cross and red fox, marten, mink and skunk. After March let it will be too late to send shipping furs to the March London fur sale, and it is predicted that after that date all kinds of furs will go at lower prices.

The Alberta Tribune mentions that diphtheria has occurred in the house of P. McCarthy, Q. C. of Calgary.

CONGRATULATORY ADDRESS.

On Monday night last a meeting of over 40 settlers of Morinville settlement was held at the residence of Joseph Dupuis. B. Maloney, M. L. A. for St. Albert, was present by request. The following address was read in English and French by Mr. Bousange:

To DANIEL MALONEY, Esq.,
Member of Northwest Assembly.

DEAR SIR:—Your friends and electors of Egg Lake have honored me to night by a request that I should express their feelings of gratitude to you, Sir, their successful candidate.

You have been successful, because you deserved it. It is true that you tried to be elected before and failed, and the success you have met with at this last election is no doubt the reward of your perseverance and the effect of a more enlightened age, when people have clearer ideas and a better knowledge of the capacity of their candidate.

So we come to exchange congratulations, since whilst we rejoice for you, you undoubtedly rejoice with us, and we feel certain that you will conscientiously and worthily fill the office which has been bestowed upon you. Your ability and experience as a farmer and business man, as well as your thorough knowledge of this country and its wants, also the impartiality you profess for either Catholics, Protestants, French, Irish, English or Scotch Canadians, who are above all true Canadians, were the qualifications which led us to choose you for our representative.

We therefore bear Sir cordially congratulate you on a well merited success, and also rejoice in anticipation of the state our roads will be in once you have the helm of the St. Albert electoral district well within your grip.

G. H. S. BOUSANGE

On behalf of the Morinville electors.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Herald says that grippe has broken out in Battleford.

The Battleford Herald does not favor the establishment of a Salvation army colony in the Northwest.

An order-in-council has been passed setting apart certain even-numbered sections in the Prince Albert district for a new Mennonite settlement.

Hon. Mr. Joly ex-premier of Quebec, will conduct the liberal campaign there during the coming election.

An Ottawa telegram of Feb. 18th, to the Winnipeg Tribune says: The appeal of the Roman Catholics for remedial legislation will be heard in the privy council chambers here on Tuesday, 25th inst. The Manitoba government and Mr. Ewart have been advised to be present. There is no longer any doubt about dissolution. It is a mere question of time now. The government wish to keep it from the opposition as long as possible, but everybody is now satisfied that the dissolution is on, and also that the government is to use the usual question for all that it is worth with a view of getting the Catholic vote.
